This link is broken. The link goes from an http:// web page to a file:// address.

The link should be changed from a file:// to an http:// URL.

Broken Link

File link:

file:///C:/Users/cow4037/AppData/Local/Microsoft/Windows/INetCache/Content.Outlook/3Q4OUTHV/landgate.wa.gov.au

https://www.wanneroo.wa.gov.au/info/20086/rates/207/rates information/5 line 939

This link is broken. The target anchor does not exist or is commented out.

The anchor after the # symbol points to a non-existent id on the target page. If the anchor link targets the same page nothing will happen when it's clicked. If the anchor link targets another page, then the top of the target page will be displayed instead of the intended location. In most cases the destination anchor has been removed accidentally and should be reinstated.

Headings should not be empty.

Add text to the heading, or alt text if the heading contains an image. Screen readers read out page headings, allowing users to quickly skip to a section, but some older screen readers do not ignore empty headings.

• Identify row and column headers in data tables using th elements, and mark layout tables with role=presentation.

Data tables allow screen reader users to understand column and row relationships. Layout tables read cells as a series of unrelated paragraphs with no tabular structure. Without th or role, screen readers apply heuristics to decide whether a table is a layout table or data table. These heuristics vary greatly between screen readers, and are affected by browser being used, window size, and font size (so the outcome is very unpredictable without th or role). If a data table has headers marked up using td, then change these to th. If a data table has no headers, add the elements describing each row and/or column. If the table is only used for layout add role=presentation to the table element.

- JAWS Reading: Treats tables without th and role as layout tables if the table contains cells above or below certain pixel sizes. This measurement is affected by browser window size, browser font size, and the browser used.
- NVDA Reading: Applies a layout table heuristic to tables without th and role which varies depending on the browser used and on the window size in some circumstances.

• VoiceOver Reading: Uses a sophisticated heuristic on tables without th and role, which is similar (but not identical) to the heuristic used by NVDA with Firefox.

 This page has words made of Unicode characters that look like English characters but are from another alphabet. This means screen readers are unable to pronounce these words correctly.

Replace the characters with their English characters equivalents, or if the text is not English, add a lang attribute to the enclosing element.

This page uses nested tables, which do not make sense when read in a screen reader.
Add role='presentation' if the inner table is a layout table, otherwise modify the inner table to present the same data without nesting tables.

 Using the same alt text on adjacent images results in screen readers stuttering as the same text is read out twice.

Use alt='' for the subsequent adjacent images, or change the redundant alt text.

Word document contains a graphic without Alt Text.

If the image is purely decorative and has no meaning then mark the image as decorative, otherwise, use 'Edit Alt Text' to add an image description. To fix, use the 'Check Accessibility' command in Word to find the image. Older versions of Word have both Title and Description fields, but only the Description is read by JAWS, so use Description for best compatibility.

If you set any of the colors on the body or a elements you must set all of them.

In HTML the color attributes are text, bgcolor, link, alink and vlink. In CSS the attributes are color and background-color. Some users have browser defaults set to white text on a black background, so setting one color without setting the others can result in black text on a black background.

Legend text is announced along with the label text for radio buttons inside a fieldset, which makes it easier for a screen reader user to understand what the radio button does. For example: <legend> Fries with your burger: </legend> <label> Yes </label> <label> No </label>

The CSS outline or border style on this element makes it difficult or impossible to see the dotted link focus outline.

Do not remove the default outline style, and change any border styles to avoid obscuring the focus outline around focusable elements.

• Avoid specifying a new window as the target of a link with target=_blank.

Displaying new windows without warning can be very confusing to non-sighted and mobile users. Some screen readers and mobile devices give very little indication a new tab or window has opened. If you cannot avoid displaying a new window, insert an "opens in a new window" warning into the link text or add the warning to the link using a title attribute or aria-label attribute.

Link uses general text like 'Click Here' which doesn't explain link purpose.

Screen reader users often tab from one link to the next, or use the 'Next Link' command. Moving between links labelled 'click here' sounds like 'Click here, tab, click here, tab, click here'. Change the link text, or add an aria-label, so the link makes sense when read without the surrounding text.

Most browsers display a security warning when a secure https: web page includes http: content.

Modern browsers will not display, or ignore, the http: content. To fix this: use relative URL paths ../images/file.png; or full URL paths /images/file.png; or absolute https://example.com/images/file.png.

 Syntax errors in the head of the document prevent reliable extraction of meta tags and page titles.

The HTML 5 parsing algorithm specifies that unexpected characters or non-head elements like img or div end the head element and start the body element meaning some meta data may be ignored. Unclosed title elements cause similar problems.

Usability

This section shows general usability issues, indicating navigation problems for all users.

Priority 1

1 issues on 9 pages

Users should be able to quickly look at each link and tell where it goes.

Don't use generic link labels like "click here" or "read more" because they're hard to tell apart when users scan a page.

Avoid underlined text - people will click on it and think it's a broken link.

Use something other than underlining for highlighting text, because it looks like a link, and users become frustrated when the "link" does not work.

Minimize the time required to download a Web site's pages.

Users rate download times up to five seconds as 'good' and over ten seconds as 'poor'. Reduce the download time to 5 seconds or less by optimizing content or reducing the size of the page.

Omitting img width or height attributes makes the page layout jump about as images load.

This makes the page very hard to read or click while it's loading. Fix by adding width and height attributes to the img tag matching the image dimensions. In responsive layouts, specifying width and height prevents layout jumping because the browser can precalculate the final image size when CSS like this is used: img { max-width: 100%; height: auto }

Provide a search option on each page of content-rich web sites.

A search option should be provided on all pages where it may be useful - users should not have to return to the homepage to conduct a search. Search engines can be helpful on content-rich web sites, but do not add value on other types of sites.

Create data entry fields that are large enough to show all of the entered data without scrolling. One study has shown that search fields should be at least 35-40 characters long to accommodate 95% percent of search terms.

Make sure each search field holds at least 35 characters, which should accommodate 95% of search terms.

Use a familiar font (Times, Georgia, Arial, Helvetica or Verdana) to achieve the best possible reading speed.

Research shows no reliable differences in reading speed or user preferences for twelve point Times New Roman or Georgia (serif fonts), or Arial, Helvetica, or Verdana (sans serif fonts). Other fonts may slow reading speed.

Use italic text sparingly - for one or two words or a short phrase.

Keep runs of styled text to less than 70 characters. When used well, styled text draws attention to important words, but also decreases reading speed by almost twenty percent.

Use link text between 3 and 100 characters so it's long enough to be understood, but avoids line wrapping.

A single word text link may not give enough information about the link's destination. A link that is a full sentence is difficult to read quickly, particularly if it wraps to another line.
